

Make story cards

Your child drawings can be made into story cards and be used as a prompt for storytelling. Children may use mark making as a way of sharing their thoughts and feelings with adults, telling stories as they draw or share their finished drawing.

The cards are a great tool for creating stories together. Think about places, people and objects when you build your storycard deck.

You can use images from old magazines and catalogues to make collages for the storycards.

Try hiding the cards in different locations for your child to find.